Re: Recent Developments in Germany

Dear Mr. Dobson,

As our Chairman, Larry Fink, has expressed to you earlier this week, BlackRock takes the recent developments and activities of Schroders in Germany very seriously. The announcement by Achim Küssner and his team to leave BlackRock and the announcement by Schroder Investment Management GmbH to hire him constitute strong indications, to say the least, that Achim Küssner and others have violated their obligations under their contractual arrangements with BlackRock.

In addition to other statutory and contractual obligations, the employees of BlackRock are prohibited from inducing, soliciting and enticing other BlackRock employees to leave their employment with BlackRock. Further, they may not participate in or procure any person to leave such employment. Any violations of these obligations could cause significant damages to BlackRock for which the acting employees should expect to become liable.

Should Schroders have assisted or abetted any BlackRock employees in their violation of contractual obligations towards BlackRock, Schroders itself would be liable to BlackRock for damages. Depending on the circumstances, the acting individuals could also have committed criminal offenses and become subject to criminal procedures in Germany.

In addition to the above obligation in regard to other employees, BlackRock employees are prohibited from competing with BlackRock as long as they are employees and may not call on, interfere with, solicit or assist in soliciting business from BlackRock clients with whom they have had personal contact or dealings during the last year prior to termination of their employment. Strict confidentiality obligations as to BlackRock business and trade secrets exist.

We ask you to confirm to what extent Schroders has been involved in a breach of contractual obligations by our employees in Germany, as described above. Further, we expect that, going forward, Schroders does not participate in, aid or support any violation by present or former BlackRock employees of their obligations toward BlackRock.

Please let me know if you have any questions or would like to discuss any of the above in further detail.

Yours sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Robert P. Connolly", with a large, sweeping flourish at the end.

Robert P. Connolly
